Two Webinar Funnels, Built With the Client and Measured Every Week

What each business had, what we built with them, and what their own trackers recorded.

Adithya Murali, Founder, Tantra

THE PROBLEM

You Close Well on a Call. You Just Do Not Get Enough Calls.

What it looks like

- New clients come from referrals and your own events, so the pipeline moves when you do.
- You have tried a webinar or a campaign. People signed up, few showed, fewer booked.
- Nobody can tell you what next month's calls will be.

What this deck shows

Two businesses that built a recurring webinar engine with us. Every number comes from the client's own tracker, row by row. No modelled figures, no projections.

HOW IT WORKS

Six Stages, One Platform, Built With Your Team

01
Traffic
Cold email, calendar invites, LinkedIn outreach, paid ads and content, every channel tracked to revenue

02
Landing and registration
Branded pages and forms that turn clicks into registrations

03
Multi-channel nurture
Email, WhatsApp and AI voice reminders that get people to show up

04
Conversion mechanism
A live event, a video sales funnel or a multi-day workshop, whichever fits your offer

05
Revenue pipeline
An 11-stage pipeline with discovery, demo and closing scripts, checkout and onboarding

06
52-week growth
A full year of follow-up that keeps turning your list into repeat revenue

One AI agent that writes, sends, routes, books and reports across all six stages.

THE PATTERN

What the Two Funnels Have in Common

98,000

Calendar Invites Carry the Traffic

Of the 99,859 people Growth Idea reached on its best webinar, 98,000 came by calendar invite. FintechCircle ran calendar-first from episode 1.

1 sheet

Every Number in One Place

Reach, registrations, attendance, calls and clients, logged after every session, so each change is judged on numbers, not on feel.

38,138

Scale Up Step by Step

10,000 reached in episode 1, then 20,046 to 38,138 invites, with every episode measured in the tracker.
